Description

Maurice Martin (1894-1978), Landscape At The Mill, Oil On Canvas, Signed lower right format with the frame Maurice Martin was in 1894 in Mormant where he spent his childhood. A gifted schoolboy, he spent his spare time drawing. His father made him work in the family house painting business. The family then moved to Paris around 1910 and the young painter continued to work in his father's business until 1914, regretting not being able to study at the Beaux Arts. Called in August 1914 to Lisieux for military preparation, he left for the front three months later. Wounded in the left arm, he will be cited three times at the order of the regiment and his army corps in Verdun. Hospitalized in Lyon, he occupies his convalescence to paint and draw. In 1917 he returned to the regiment in Lisieux, a city
