Description

Small Table entirely made of solid oak, with a modular top with its four wooden dowels, allowing the blocking in horizontal position of its two folding shutters. This tray opens in the middle with two sliding pulls with handles. They allow access to intermediate boards, blocked in the structure by wooden keys, and forming an atypical storage compartment. The sides of this Table, narrowed at mid-height and finished with small feet, are cut and openwork. They are connected by a spacer taking up these two characteristics and the assembly described above. We will appreciate the adaptability of this centenary table, which skilfully combines simplicity and originality.  Period: 1920
