bodies, conveying a sense of softness and fluidity.Tender Interaction: The woman on the left is gently holding a naked child, her arms stretched out in front of her chest to support the child's weight, conveying a sense of secure embrace. The woman on the right has her arm slightly raised, appearing to tease or playfully interact with the baby, and looks at the child with undeniable affection. Looking at the statue, one can undeniably feel the warm love that the two women have for the child, creating a deeply moving and emotionally resonant scene.Base and Signature:Layered Pedestal: The pedestal of the statue is supported by a robust stone base and is divided into two distinct parts. The upper section is made of dark wood, while the lower part is crafted from dark red marble. This combination creates a very harmonious color gradient, transitioning from black to brown and then to red, adding visual depth to the presentation.Round Base and Inscription: The statue rests on a round bronze base, which serves to enhance the soft and flexible beauty of the figures. Moreover, it is also signed by the sculptor, though the signature is presently indecipherable.This sculpture stands as a powerful and emotive depiction of familial love and tenderness, rendered with exceptional skill and artistry. It would make a profound and beautiful addition to any collection, offering timeless emotional resonance.
