Description

Germany: superb cup with its saucer in Meissen porcelain, decorated with polychrome enamels and gold, gallant scenes, after Jean Antoine Watteau from the 18th century, circa 1745.

There was a time when France was influential and radiant. This exquisite testimony to our cultural history reminds us of it. France is honored by the most prestigious European porcelain factory of the time. Indeed, declined from the fashionable works of Watteau, this cup and its saucer are illustrated with scenes carried out with delicacy and elegance on the theme of Love and Marivaudage, with a gold thread on the lips and heels, and on the marlis interiors a sophisticated gold frieze. Inside the sorbet, in the center, a flower painted in the traditional way
