Description

Exceptional white Carrara marble fireplace, Louis XVI style, Napoleon III period, in perfect condition. Her headband, chiseled with interlacing hibiscus flowers, a symbol of purity and femininity, is accosted with oak leaves and three acorns, for generous strength and resistance. Its rich uprights, with lateral windings adorned with acanthus rosettes, are also carved with a falling acanthus leaf, emblem of the cult of the fine arts, accompanied by ribbons and a branch of mistletoe, an omen of fertility, auspicious and abundant. A frieze of canals runs along its line of focus and its sides are embellished with panels. A narrowed in fire black painted brass has been reproduced to the existing model. Its body length is 165 cm. The dimensions of its marble hearth are 103 cm wide and 82 cm high. The dimensions
