Description

Inkwell in gilded bronze, in the Louis XVI style, by the Belgian sculptor George Van de Voorde (1878-1970), known for having produced numerous works of memorials to the dead of the two wars. This article offers, at each end, two ink receptacles, with domed lids, each containing a glass container. On the front, a flat part can accommodate pens and small writing accessories. Finely crafted with flowers, foliage and ribbon, this set rests on four small square feet. This double inkwell will sumptuously dress up your desk while giving it an artistic touch.

Period: Early 20th century
