Description

Pair of baluster vases in cloisonné and champlevé bronze dating from the last imperial dynasty to have reigned over China: the Qing dynasty. These vases are sumptuously decorated with colored enamels representing the vegetation on the body and the neck. They are decorated with handles in the form of elephant heads with two trunks. There is a mianhao (signogrammed seal) under each bottom of the vase. This pair of vase will seduce, in particular by its authenticity, lovers of art and Asia.
