Description

Pair of pot-bellied vases in Chinese porcelain from Nanjing, with beige crackled background and polychrome enamel decoration. Each vase presents a revolving decoration of a battle scene. Many colorfully dressed Asian warriors are painted, surrounded by a stylized landscape. Testimony and homage to the traditions of ancient China, these vases are part of Chinese folklore. Crowned with a collar, the neck of the vases is decorated with Fô dogs on the sides. The top of the belly features fantastic animals resembling lizards. Signed below, these vases from Nanjing are rich in decoration and ornamentation, dear to Chinese artists of the Qing dynasty.  Period: Late 19th century
