Description

Large sculpture representing a golden pheasant from Asia, signed Lorino on the back. The whole rests on a large black marble veined with white. The bird is sculpted with finesse and its lines are refined in the Art Deco style. The posture of the subject is such that one could observe it in its natural environment: one of its legs, raised, offers an impression of movement, accentuated by the plume of the long feathers of the tail. Its head has a beautiful large crest surrounded by a collar with stylized feathers. We will particularly appreciate the pretty nuanced patina of this animal sculpture in patinated gilt metal and its large size.
