Description

SOLR desk lamp Created by Ferdinand Solère in the 1950s, it is entirely in gray hammered aluminum. The large lampshade is pivoting, and takes place at the end of a chrome steel arm, adjustable in height thanks to a small black bakelite knob. It lights up thanks to a chrome airplane type switch, placed at the base of the lampshade. It has some traces of time, especially on the paint, otherwise its condition is excellent. The electricity is 100% original, an LED bulb (supplied) has been placed in the bayonet socket for a touch of modernity and economy!
