Description

This Chinese console table in vermilion red lacquered wood, and in perfect condition, has the double advantage of being small in size and of very decorative graphics. As its auspicious color tells us, it is probably a piece of furniture offered on the occasion of a wedding. The lacquer that decorates it is a magnificent vermilion red with changing reflections depending on the light. The top is of the type with raised edges and the slightly flared legs are defined by a double vertical molding and are attached by a pearl to an eventful apron, giving the general design of the piece of furniture an effective decorative value. The console can be used in the middle of the room, since its two sides are also treated.
