Mirlet (French school late 19th century): "Young girl playing the harp", large miniature on ivory 11.5 X 9 cm, pasted on cardboard and mounted in a Louis XVI style bronze frame with ribbon 18 X 13 cm . This young girl, dressed in Louis XVI fashion, poses seated in a landscape. The Artist, probably for a legitimist clientele, multiplied the effigies of the sovereign and his entourage in the last quarter of the 19th century.
