Description

Henri Dufaux 1879-1980

presents here a beautiful portrait of a young African going to draw water. The work is dedicated to one of his friends.

The enlarged perspective gives grandeur to the painting, the technique is beautiful and the touch of the material is very interesting.

The Dufaux family is a part of the artistic world, because it comes from the industrial world. It is mainly thanks to Armand (1883-1941), a brilliant and visionary industrialist, who took part in the development of motor mechanics.

With his brother Henri, he created an engine to be fixed on a bicycle before becoming a vehicle.

Henri Dufaux painted like his father before him.
