well-to-do liberal-minded family open to the arts.
From the age of 18, Lucie moved to Paris near Montmartre and studied painting there in the studio of the Grande Chaumière and that of the painter and sculptor Colarossi and frequented the Impressionists. She became friends with Henri Harpignies and Ernest Designolle. She mainly creates small formats on canvas or cardboard and her "transparent" painting gives her works a very special depth. She did not acquire the notoriety that her real talent could have earned her and died in Bléneau in 1950.
