Description

The facade in curves and counter-curves opens with two doors in the upper and lower part. The solid walnut doors are deeply carved with several set rectangular panels and foliage scrolls. At the top, the pediment in a policeman's hat decorated with plant motifs is surmounted by a sculpted cornice joining the top of the offset uprights. The recessed upper body reveals a beautiful cremone bolt in wrought iron and brass as well as a three-point lock with simple closure and key closure. These two elements attest to a particularly diligent work of ironwork. This corner cupboard with deep moldings and warm walnut has an accent pull on the front and rests on three rive legs. Brass keyholes and hinges. Keys with heart rings. 18th century period.
