Description

Small stained glass cabinet from 1900. The door consists of a stained glass window with an iris motif typical of Art Nouveau, on a flamed white background. It is framed and enhanced with an openwork sculpture representing a stylized poppy. We find this same decoration on the gallery in the form of a bulb. In the lower part, the rod crotch reveals curved shapes on the sides. The original keyhole, in bronze and with floral decoration, contrasts wonderfully with the entire piece of furniture. Possible delivery not included in the price.
