Description

Neoclassical walnut occasional cabinet. The medieval period is represented thanks to the three polylobed sides. The scalloped gallery also recalls this medieval period. The facade belt has a curve that also follows the shape of the top. The whole of the four-sided piece of furniture is sublimated by a lower part, the curved arch. The curved legs reveal a beautiful quarter-round molding. The perforated drawer and niche (h 52 cm) add even more functionality. This piece of furniture is rare, because it copies its predecessors, and enhances the know-how of the art deco period. Possible delivery not included in the price.
