Description

Pair of Land of Lorraine busts, Henri IV and Sully. Louis XVI period. Cylindrical bases in black marble adorned with a chain in fire-gilt bronze. This subject was favored by the public following the success of the play "Henri IV's hunting ground", a play which glorified the virtues of the first Bourbon. These busts echo the famous group modeled by Paul-Louis Cyfflé created in 1769 in Luneville. In perfect original condition. Museum quality. Height of subjects off bases: 11 cm.
