Description

In early spring of 1983, Joan Carles Roca Sans traveled to the island of Majorca to paint these extraordinary landscapes with the inspiration and design that characterized him.

In March, this rural landscape of the vegetable gardens of the city of Deia offers itself to the eyes of travelers like a living spectacle.

Roca Sans goes against fashion to claim the emotion of open-air painting.

Several books cover this period from 1974 to 1983 which prefigures his style later known as "synthetic - expressionist" and which will define all his production entirely inscribed in Postmodernity.
