Description

Elegant young lady seated wearing a yellow silk dress. The dreamy gaze, a rose on her neckline and a dove eating from her left hand. This painting is characteristic of romanticism at the end of the 19th century in France and Belgium. Leon Herbo 1850-1907, was a Belgian artist. A student at the academy of fine arts in Tournai and Brussels, he specialized in portraits of ladies of the nobility as well as oriental women. We owe him many paintings by theater artists.
