Description

Beautiful Regency period bookcase all in kingwood veneer, very neatly made, no doubt in Strasbourg.
The doors have flat frames, they are surrounded on the inside by a hollow cove which receives two panes at the top separated by a small transom and at the bottom by a panel veneered in the sun.
The frame is with canted sides and small sides. It is built like the doors with a recessed cove.
The whole is veneered in a square and obliquely forming rafters with crosspieces on the sides at the height of those of the doors, the cut sides, they are veneered with a large round forming the separation.
It is topped with a cove cornice placed across it.
It has a cut base resting on four feet with a beautiful ornamentation of gilded bronzes. The
