Description

French school 1970s: "Surrealist tapestry II with Escher's cube", patchwork of textile elements cut and assembled on a background of black woolen cloth (slightly attacked), mounted later on a frame (enlarged) 67 X 58 cm . When many years ago I acquired the first of these tapestries, I kept it for a long time in my "murisoir" in the hope of deciphering the monogram. The ace ! As the years went by, I gave it up and put this "Surrealist Owl 1973" up for sale and it left immediately... What was my surprise, the other day, to come across two others! This and a Nude that I bought immediately and, seeing me doing it, a colleague offered me a fourth, a scorpion, still in this strange and very original surrealist vein. As a result, I don't know much more, except that it is not a unicum, that they were created between
