

Georgian Diamond Portrait Ring In Rose Gold 18 Karats And Silver, Convertible Ring

2 162 EUR

Period : 18th century

Condition : Etat d'usage

Material : Gold

Description

Georgian diamond portrait ring in rose gold 18 karats and silver 800 thousandth. Antique ring composed of a hexagonal bezel enclosing a lady's portrait. The miniature portrait is painted on organic matter, it is highlighted by a surround of thirty rose-cut diamonds in a silver setting. The basket is beautifully crafted, decorated with scrolls in cartouches corresponding to the hexagonal shape of the jewel. This ring is a transformable piece of jewellery. The bezel can be removed by means of a pin located at the basket. It is likely that the portrait, once removed from the ring, could be worn as a brooch or pendant by fitting it to another suitable structure. This ring dates from the late 18th century. Swan and owl hallmarks (later adds) Finger size: 51 EU or 5.5 US (sizing
