third removable thus making it easier to prepare for bed - The Turkish bed is a rest bed, with a massive appearance and armrests curves typical of late 18th century French furniture -

The arrangement of the canopy and curtains reminiscent of the Polish bed -

Fabulous Turkish bed pieces or very large daybeds were created by Nicolas Quinibert Foliot or Jean Batiste Tilliard for Versailles, Nissim de Camondo or beautiful residences -

The founder and collector of the Fondation Custodia, Fritz Lugt owned a very similar ottoman bed (See photo on the ad -)

Wide and deep, this fully removable single bed with lag screws, worked on all sides and thus allows it to be placed in an alcove against a wall or in the center of the room -

Exceptional piece with reversed bedside tables with crooks decorated with flowers as well as the feet-Deep protrusion of the sculptures - The two crosspieces carved with attributes and trophies - Extremely rare this piece of furniture has retained all its original lacquer and polychrome _

This style, very inspired by nature, reflects a search for intimacy and comfort (with the violin backrest and the curved foot called "Louis XV foot")

The Louis XV style illustrates the perfect mastery of the assemblies and the resistance of the wood with in particular the removal of the spacers - The set is embellished with a stool or bed jumper trimmed with trimmings and pompoms of the same fabric -
