Description

This time Paul Sieffert offers us a bird's eye view of Paris from the heights of Sèvres in 1947 with this green traction that heads towards the capital. Sèvres where our artist died 10 years later. A large mansion surrounded by trees overlooks the city below. A sky dappled with gray with touches of pink that illuminate this beautiful end of the day. A beautiful, very detailed landscape that inspires tranquility a stone's throw from the Observatory and the Bois de Meudon. The painting is perfectly highlighted by its molded wooden frame with bronze patina. On its original canvas with the stamp of the Paul Sieffert workshop, a stamp which is also affixed to the frame. Signed and dated lower left. A rich palette of colors that will seduce you... The artist is listed in Bénézit. Dimensions: 46 cm x 55 cm (format
