Description

Chinese Copper Vase, with Honeycombed Bottom and Cloisonne Enamelling. This Goldsmithing Technique is based on the principle of Metal slats with upturned edges welded to the bottom of the Object. In the cavities thus formed is poured powder of various colors, which will not risk mixing during heating. The flared opening of this Vase is bordered by a large Frieze where Turquoise, White and Red patterns are repeated. The upper part, slightly narrower, is entwined with an Important Dragon with long goaties. Its winged body has Green and Pink scales and a dorsal mane. Its legs are terminated by Eagle claws. This imaginary creature travels among small colored clouds. The lower part of this Vase, more swollen, is embellished on two of its faces with protruding Masks, with bulging
