Description

This couple forming showcase and vintage console, includes two distinct elements: an upper part consisting of a showcase visible from all sides, with frames entirely in brass, mounted with original screws. It opens with a large glass door, mounted on two hinges, and lined inside with two glass shelves, 1 cm thick and adjustable on notches at 2 cm. This opening is provided with a lock in working order, as well as a pair of original keys. The second part features a solid mahogany console, Empire style. Its tray is molded on its edges then surrounded by a fine band. On the front, its belt is adorned with an important bronze decoration forming a rosette and palmettes. This nearly century-old presentation property is built on four column legs enriched on its upper and lower ends with finely chiseled bronze rings. The
