cornice) ----- Cabinet

designed in two bodies assembled with tongue and groove, mounted on a base and topped with a protruding cornice with moldings. It opens with two massive, powerfully paneled doors. Note the pattern of flames on the molding of the panels, which is very closely inspired by the Hungarian point - very fashionable in Europe at the same time. Its facade is punctuated by three twisted columns in sculpted solid walnut, each resting on a high paneled console topped with a Corinthian capital; the two side columns are each pegged to a
