Description

Large "Doltcha" table carafe in tinned copper originating from Persia, Iran, and more precisely from Iranian Azerbaijan. These carafes contained appetizing or curative drinks such as iskenjebi or cherbet, drinks that are an integral part of Azerbaijani culinary art. Heavily decorated with friezes of small mandorlas enclosing stylized flowers, followed by 15 large, heavily hemmed botehs on the body. .

A large bronze esse hilt, strongly held by four hammered mountings.

The fineness of the carvings show the dexterity of Persian engravers. These marvelous tinned coppers, were under the Safavid and Qajar dynasties, an eminent alternative to silver and they enjoyed the same status. These objects certainly lived on as the centerpieces of Persian
