Description

Beautiful Walnut sideboard, reminiscent of the creations of Maison Leleu, a French establishment founded in 1882. This name took on real importance from the 1920s, with iconic furniture borrowed from the Art Deco style. For example, this company personally took care of the private dining room of the Élysée Palace at the request of the President of the Republic Vincent Auriol (from 1959 to 1966). This piece of furniture offers a top with small recessed mouldings. It opens with three doors with wide mitred frames. In the center of each of them, there is a motif of Arabesques and foliage in Mahogany, with inlays of Mother-of-Pearl and Copper, suggesting a face on a Thuya Burl background. These inlaid panels are underlined by surrounds made up of protruding strips. Each
