Description

Portico clock from the Louis XVI period, in white marble and black marble, gilded and chiseled bronze. The pilasters with terms of children are surmounted by two medallions in Wedgwood. The enamel dial is adorned with an urn and a large laurel wreath and ribbon bow. Its sun pendulum rests on a wire suspension. The movement is in working order. The rectangular base is lined with two gilt bronze plates decorated with cupids and rests on four cylindrical feet. Eighteenth century period.
