Description

Very beautiful oil on canvas representing the Sainte-Chapelle seen from the quays at the end of the day.
We note a good mastery of the flat areas of paint and in certain places of the division of the touch, a very beautiful light and gradient in the sky, and reflections on the water, according to the Impressionist doctrine.

A trace of a signature is at the bottom and the painting is dated 1903. The Sainte-Chapelle, located on the Île Saint-Louis in the center of Paris, is a radiant Gothic gem. It was built in seven years, a real record. It is intended to house the most precious relics of Christianity, including the crown of Saint Louis, French king.
