Description
-------------

Not having found its exact term, I think it is an instrument between the "cranioclast" and the "basiotrypse". Used for the extraction of fetuses following complications. Turned wooden handles, checkered ebony handle, iron clamp, the body in an alloy. By activating the clamps, the mechanism allowing the two graduated strips to be pulled is released. Very good general condition, however a crack on each wooden handle

French working dating from the first part of the 19th century, Circa 1840
