Description

Pair of sofas in carved walnut and lacquered chinoiserie, Venice, early 18th century
Cm W 135 x H 105,5 x D 57
seat height 48 cm
This rare and refined pair of sofas was made in Venice at the beginning of the eighteenth century, during the transition between Louis XIV and Louis XV. Each sofa consists of three seats with backs called pattona: it is a backrest to day, with in the center a vertical folder of elongated shape and fashioned, which provides a large surface to decorate with motifs often taken from the East. Also in this case the backrests, armrests and legs are in carved wood, lacquered with dark background and embossed figures with polychrome and gold chinoiserie motifs. The arched legs and moves are joined together by mixed crossbars. It is quite rare to be able to find
