Description

Temple candlestick - Shokudai in bronze. The extremely complex and historically rich composition required the molding of the fragments and their assembly. The candlestick is decorated with, among other things, a triple crown of lotus leaves or two figures of scholars or monks. Made with finesse and a great sense of detail. Chikugo Daijo Tsunemi (17th/18th century) - inhabitant of Horikawa, Kyoto. A talented and highly regarded founder, he notably made a bell for the Ankoku-ji temple in Kyoto, bearing an inscription with the date of 1705. Edo period, late 17th/early 18th century. The base bears the inscription: (?) ????? (from ?? Chikugo) Daijo Tsunemi saku (fact) ? Kyo (Kyoto) ??? Horikawa ju (Horikawa district), ?? Chikugo (name). On the other side, ??? Senami-ya
