Description

Coming from an antique dealer's shed in our region, this monoxyle frame, from wild plum wood, is a small work of art, which time has unfortunately abused.

Vertical framing, well structured by firm moldings and foliage, from which the sculptor has organized a detailed asymmetrical floral decoration with an inverted profile, falling roses and disheveled foliage.

School of Nancy, circa 1710, close to the works of César Bagard.

Condition is not good: the frame is no longer monoxyle: there are 3 gluings, parts of flowers have disappeared, and some gaps in this exuberance, see the red arrow photos.

Dimensions: 21cm x 14cm. Ideal frame to present a nice object, like that you see on some photos,
