Deco movement as an artistic phenomenon (Cerio, Lord & Prentice, "Applauding Art Deco", Introspective Magazine, 2015). The Société des Artistes Décorateurs (SAD) association was created in 1901 by architects and decorators Guimard, Grasset, Dufrêne, Lachenal, Follot..., and the lawyer René Guilleré. Its aim is to promote quality French craftsmanship, artistic cabinetmaking and the latest industrial techniques. The Salon des Artistes Décorateurs was born in the process (first edition in 1904 at the Grand Palais). Both reached their peak at the International Exhibition of Modern Decorative and Industrial Arts in 1925, when the Art Deco style took hold. Recognized as a public utility in 1924, this association will last until 2008.
