"Photographs in black of female nudes evoking statuary through the play of light and the purity of the lines which give smooth and perfect bodies the brilliance of marble. By a jack-of-all-trades (1869-1942) of the decorative arts installed on the Swiss shores of Lake Geneva since the post-war period and for which this is the only photographic work. A way of returning to the academic nude, marked by the athletic and frozen aesthetic of the 1930s". (Boudrot).
