He enrolled at the Beaux-Arts in his hometown and then in 1921, at those of Paris where he was a pupil of Jean Boucher. He stayed there only a short time, preferring to work independently, guided by Charles Despiau. Very influenced by Maillol, he first practiced direct carving on wood and stone. He exhibited from 1923 at the Salon des Artistes Français and the Salon des Indépendants. He obtained a first travel grant in 1934 which
