Description

Weaving Loom Pulley Stirrup

Baule culture, Ivory Coast

First half of the 20th century

Wood, iron and pigments

H.: 15 ; W.: 6 ; D.: 5 cm

This monoxyle stirrup is sculpted in the shape of a horseshoe and has an anthropomorphic figure on the upper part with characteristic features: an oval face with a tapered chin, a shell-shaped hairstyle with four braids with geometric incisions, eyes highlighted with white kaolin pigments, superciliary arches leading to a long nose and a cup-shaped mouth. The neck is punctuated three times with geometric scarifications, and the cheeks are also marked with these facial designs.
