Painter of religious compositions, genre scenes, portraits, landscapes. Orientalist.

He began his artistic studies in this city, then was a student of Alexandre Cabanel in Paris.

A travel scholarship allowed him to spend two years in Egypt from 1885 to 1887.

From that date he stayed every year in Algeria, sometimes as far as Constantinople or Persia.

With the painter Etienne Dinet, supported by the baron Chassériau, nephew of the painter Théodore Chassériau, he founded the Société des
