Description

This vintage Scandinavian sideboard, a Scandinavian style sideboard from the 60s, is a real gem of Nordic design. Coming from England, it reflects the sophistication and functional sense characteristic of the era and style. Constructed of high quality teak, the natural wood color provides a warm and comforting presence. The surface has been fully sanded and varnished in our workshop, showcasing the distinctive grain of the wood and ensuring its longevity. The sideboard extends over a length of 183cm, with a height of 73cm and a depth of 43cm, making it as functional as it is attractive. Its well-balanced proportions and clean design add a touch of sophistication to any room. It has tapered legs, typical of the Scandinavian style, which offer sturdy support while providing visual lightness. The angled leg detail adds a unique design element, a nod to the sideboard's mid-century roots. The piece offers varied storage solutions with three spacious drawers, ideal for storing smaller items. In addition, it has two hinged doors that reveal a practical shelf, perfect for storing and organizing your belongings. An additional low hinged door hides another shelf, providing even more storage space. In short, this vintage Scandinavian sideboard from the 60s, with its clean design and practical functionality, is a striking example of Nordic aesthetics. With its delicate restoration and warm teak, it will bring a touch of vintage charm to any interior.
