Description

Medieval stoup in carved stone, with a quadrangular base with four crouching lions. The stem is enriched with clusters and leaves of oak with stylized griffins that climb between the branches. The upper cup, with two loops, bears in the center a coat of arms carved in band, resting on two large oak leaves and protected on the sides by two rampant griffins. The object is missing a handle. The stoup can be dated between 1350 and 1380.
