the two side bands are sliding and offer the possibility of having 4 meters of additional extensions. (Supplied) The chairs with perforated backs, are sculpted with scrolls, they have been fully restored by our upholsterer in the traditional way, they are covered with patinated leather. The set is truly representative of Eugène Gaillard's know-how, he did not faithfully represent the plant forms, he transformed them into fantastic motifs. Period 1900, model presented at the Universal Exhibition in Paris in 1900. Eugène Gaillard: Architect and designer born in Paris in 1862, died in Paris in 1933. He joined the Art Nouveau house directed by Siegfried Bing in Paris, alongside Georges de Feure and Edouard Colonna to create interiors for his pavilion at the Universal Exhibition in Paris in 1900.
