Description

Bronze representing an offering to Priapus: a maenad or a naked bacchante presses against a stele surmounted by a bust of a satyr representing the god Priapus. The whole is nicely treated, the satyr's face is very fine and the attitude of the lascivious young woman lets imagine her intentions.

garlands of vine branches adorn the stele.

the whole is very harmonious.

signature of Clodion on the back of the bronze, of course this bronze is not of Clodion but it bears the signature because it is in the spirit of certain works of this famous artist.

beautiful patina slightly worn in places, take a good look at the photos.

a charming bronze an allegory of sensuality.
