Description

Very nice set of three white lacquered wrought iron gates, mid 20th century. These grids were initially used as security grids (windows) but can easily be used as a decorative element in a garden or indoors. The fixing brackets having been carefully preserved, they could also be welded together to form a long grid on a low wall or served as a support for a climbing plant etc...

These three grids are in very good condition, the white paint is dated. origin and therefore has many wear and small scattered lacks. Superb craftsmanship, excellent quality and solidity.

Weight of a grid alone: 18.5 kg, i.e. a total of 55.5 kg
