Description

Art Deco period coffered desk. The cubic lines enhance the softness of the rounded columns. It responds to the flat rear façade with great sobriety. The retractable top in rosewood veneer against grain marvelously matches the shape of the frame. The box drawers offer continuity in the vein, enhanced by the recessed mahogany plinth. The fretted brass-plated bronze handle of the door is enhanced by the keyhole with a spun and sandblasted rectangular frame. The whole is enhanced by the openwork circles that testify to modernity. The contrast with the silver bronze buttons on the border highlights the know-how of the craftsmen. Everything is enhanced by the round brass keyhole of the central drawer. The functional set combines short length and good depth making it easy to place. Restored by our
