Description

Knitter in mahogany and mahogany veneer resting on four feet skates. It consists of two openwork uprights joined by a tray in the shape of a trough set with a bronze gallery. The uprights each end with three inverted consoles receiving the upper part. The latter is formed by a top with a high edge also decorated with a gilded bronze gallery. One of the sides is tilting. Louis XVI period Usual restorations H. 78 x W. 66 x D. 35 cm Often found in a feminine interior, this practical little piece of furniture allows you to put down your work easily without a fall threatening to damage the work started. In mahogany, this small piece of furniture is a telling example of Anglomania. This form of knitter is linked to the production of several great cabinetmakers: Riesener, Carlin (sale of November 13, 2018, lot
