Description

Verceram ceramic art Very beautiful pair of vases 1950/1960 The vocabulary of form is essentially inspired by the sea, but the more production progresses, the more the forms are abstract, the curves taut, and the design radical. The latest models are of a rare purity, and of great creativity. Let's pay tribute to the director and creator for the brand. Pearly or iridescent enamel appears. Most of the production is two-tone. White unites with iridescent black, iridescent burgundy, black speckled orange and black speckled red (my favorites). The other part of the production (less happy) uses the same shapes but is dressed in a mixed red and brown enamel, it is true trend at the time. Neck diameter 17cm, base 9.5cm Height 33cm
