Description

Set of six antique Black Forest stag (Capreolus capreolus) trophies on turned wooden plaques with black finish. Some bear a stamp on the back of the plate with the shortcut of the hunter's name. Shot in Germany around the 1900s.

Trophies are souvenirs of hunted game, kept by the hunter as a keepsake or decorative object. For many centuries it was a tradition to collect trophies. Today, they are increasingly popular as decorative elements in hunting lodges.

This item contains parts of animal origin, which belong to non-threatened and non-endangered animals and which comply with US Fish & Wildlife regulations. They are not listed in Appendices I and II of CITES. Our international
